3 Martha's children devoured the cake that she ..... (bake) only an hour ago.
4 I must have dropped the letter that she ..... (hand) to me.
5 When they got home, they discovered that their babysitter ..... (already read) their toddler a bedtime story.
6 When I finally reached the front of the queue, I found out that my sister ..... (pick up) the tickets an hour earlier.

4 Complete the sentences with the past perfect simple or continuous form of the verbs in brackets.

1 The waiter, who was under a lot of pressure, brought a starter that I ..... (not order).
2 I had great difficulty recalling the poem I ..... (try) to memorise the previous night.
3 The children excitedly collected the fruit that ..... (fall) from the trees.
4 She ..... (play) tennis all afternoon when we glimpsed her briefly as we walked past the park.
5 I ..... (read) a chapter of my book every evening for over two weeks, so I was upset when I forgot to take my book with me on holiday.
6 He ..... (live) in Paris all his life and was reluctant to move, even when he got married.

used to / didn't use to

The structure used to + infinitive is used for repeated actions, habits or states in the past:

Before the internet, people used to write letters a lot more.

The negative form of this structure is didn't use to:

We didn't use to have a dishwasher in our old house.

Used to is not normally used with time expressions which specify the duration of the action:

I smoked for ten years, but then I gave up. ✓
~~I used to smoke for ten years, but then I gave up.~~

Would + infinitive can also be used for actions and habits in the past:

When I was a child, my dad would always tell me a story at bedtime.

However, would cannot be used to talk about past states:

This collection of paintings used to belong to a rich family. ✓
~~This collection of paintings would belong to a rich family.~~
(Belong is a stative verb.)

5 Complete the sentences with the correct form of used to and the verbs in brackets.

1 I ..... eating spinach when I was a child, but now I love it! (– / enjoy)
2 Her friend ..... judo, but now she trains twice a week. (– / do)
3 They ..... hours playing football in the park. (+ / spend)
4 My mother ..... a beautiful grand piano. (+ / own)
5 ..... she ..... in touch with her relatives before they emigrated to New Zealand? (? / keep)
6 I ..... the sound of fireworks when I was young. (– / like)

6 Tick the correct sentences. Correct the sentences with mistakes.

1 My dad would play in a band before he got married.
2 I would work in a hotel for many years in my youth.
3 When she was younger, she would enjoy playing the flute and would practise every day.
4 I would live in London near Hyde Park until I left to go to university in Nottingham.
5 When I was a kid I would play in the park with my friends until it was quite dark and my mother called me to go in.
6 I didn't use to enjoy the taste of seafood, until I had the chance to eat some fresh mussels in Scotland last year.

UNIT 3

Modal verbs

ability

To express ability in the present, we use can or be able to:

On a clear day, you can see the mountains from my balcony.
I 'm not able to read without my glasses.

For general ability in the past, we use could or be able to:

The sea was warm, so we were able to swim all year round.
In the old days you could buy everything at the local market.

However, when we are talking about ability on one specific occasion in the past, we only use be able to, not could:

Luckily we didn't get lost because Alice was able to get directions from someone. ✓ (specific occasion)
~~Luckily we didn't get lost because Alice could get directions from someone.~~

1 Complete the sentences with a modal verb from the box. One of the modal verbs is used twice.

can can't could couldn't was able to

1 Could you ride a bike when you were five?
2 He couldn't get to the party on time yesterday, because his car broke down.
3 He's absolutely amazing – he's only seven and he can speak five languages, including Greek.
4 She was relieved, because she was able to find a taxi and get to the airport on time.
5 I've searched everywhere for my glasses, but I couldn't find them anywhere.
6 I can't lift this box – it's so heavy! Could you help me, please?

2 Tick the correct sentences. Correct the sentences with mistakes.

1 ✓ I wasn't able translate the text into German, because it contained too many unfamiliar expressions. → to
2 When the plumber showed me the bill for the repair, I didn't have enough money on me to pay for it, but fortunately I could use my credit card this time. → was able to
3 Thank you for your offer to lend me some money, but I am afraid I couldn't accept it. → can't
4 ✓ When you finally move into your new house, you'll be able to decorate it as you wish.
5 ✓ I could taste and smell the onions for hours after the meal.
6 She could run the marathon in less than three hours, although she had not been training regularly for ten days. → was able to possibility

To say that something is possible, we use could, may or might:

Without treatment, your health could be at risk.
Let's have dinner indoors because it might rain later.
I may be able to join you later, but I can't say for sure.

We use could have, may have or might have to talk about possibility in the past:

She could have let us know about the change, but she forgot.
They may have missed the ferry because the traffic was bad.
This place might have been important in ancient times, but experts are not sure.

impossibility

To say that something is impossible in the present, we use can't:

You can't cross the river here because the bridge is closed.

We use can't have or couldn't have to talk about impossibility in the past:

You can't have seen James in town today because h home all day.
She couldn't have won the competition without he support.

certainty

When we are certain about something, we use mu

You must be exhausted after walking such a long w

To talk about certainty in the past, we use must ha

They must have been terribly worried when their ch didn't come home.

obligation

To say that something is obligatory in the present often use must when the obligation is by the spea

Everyone must report to me before they go home.

When the obligation comes from outside, we ofte have to:

The new law means that we have to pay more for p transport.

For both kinds of obligation in the past, we use ha

We had to come home by train because the airport was closed.

no obligation / unnecessary

When there is no obligation to do something, or v something is unnecessary, we use don't have to, d to or needn't:

You don't have to bring your own towel because ev is provided.
You don't need to tell me what happened. I saw it myself.
*We're going to eat out tonight, so you needn't cook

We use didn't need to when something was unnec the past, and did not happen:

We didn't need to pay because the concert was fre didn't pay because this was unnecessary.)

However, when we want to say that something unnecessary has happened, we use needn't have:

We needn't have hurried because the train left late (We hurried, but this was unnecessary.)

permission

To say that something is allowed, we use can:

You can park outside the shop on weekdays.

May is also used, but it is more formal:

May I ask where you bought that beautiful dress?*

To talk about something that was allowed in the past, we use could:

When I was a child, we could play outside as much as we wanted.

When something is not allowed, we use can't or mustn't:

I'm sorry, but you can't sit at this table because it's reserved.
You mustn't start writing until the teacher says so.

For things that were not allowed in the past, we use couldn't:

In the old days, people couldn't travel abroad without a visa.

3 Choose the correct options to complete the sentences.

1 If you don't pay attention to your skiing instructor, you could / can have an accident.
2 You can't have / might have passed the maths test, because you didn't do any revision!
3 Do we have to / must get up now?
4 I must / have try to argue less often with my younger brother.
5 The police warned me that I can / must never drive without insurance again.
6 When I was a child, people couldn't / mustn't access the internet with their mobile phones.
7 We didn't need to / must queue to get into the concert because we got to the venue really early.
8 You can / must buy lunch in the canteen or bring a sandwich if you prefer.

the right thing to do

When we want to say that something is the right or the wrong thing to do, we use should/shouldn't or ought/ought not to:

You shouldn't eat too many sweets when you are on a diet.
People ought to be more careful about saving energy in the home.

The past forms are should have and ought to have:

You should have asked me before borrowing my bike.

4 Find and correct the mistake in each sentence below.

1 She shouldn't have ate all those crisps. eaten
2 They should arrived by now. should have arrived
3 I should have listen to my friend's advice. listened
4 People ought waste less food.
5 You should to ask your teacher for help if you don't understand the question.

4 ought to waste less food / ought to be wasting less food.

5. should have asked

Adverbs of degree

These adverbs can be used with verbs, adjectives and other adverbs.

When we want to say 'a little', we can use slightly or a bit (less formal):

I'm feeling a bit tired, so I'm going to bed now.

When we want to say 'a lot' or 'very', we can use absolutely, completely, extremely, really or totally:

He drove extremely fast all the way home.

When we mean 'more than a little, but less than a lot', we can use fairly, pretty, rather or quite:

We were quite surprised when she told us the news, even though we knew something was wrong.

However, we normally only use rather with negative or surprising ideas:

I must say I was rather disappointed with your exam results.

With adjectives such as right, sure and different, quite means 'completely':

Are you quite sure that you want me to tell Alex about this?

With gradable adjectives and adverbs such as good, happy or hard, we use extremely, fairly, quite, rather, really, slightly or very:

She was very angry when she heard what he had done. ✓

(Angry is a gradable adjective, which means that it can be used to describe different levels of anger.)

~~She was absolutely angry when she heard what he had done.~~

With stronger (ungradable) adjectives and adverbs such as wonderful, impossible or delighted, we use absolutely, completely, really or totally:

She was absolutely furious when she heard what he had done. ✓

~~She was very furious when she heard what she had done.~~

(Furious is an ungradable adjective, which means that it describes an extreme state of anger which cannot have different levels.)

5 Put the words in order to make sentences.

1 a snack / I'm / going to have / before dinner. / quite hungry, / I'm / so
2 extremely nervous / the job. / I was offered / I was / but / about / in the end / my interview,
3 was / but / computer game / I bought it / rather expensive, / for my niece / The / nonetheless.
4 was / when I realised / he had lied / absolutely furious / I / that / to me.
5 behaviour / the party / very / Her / angry. / at / made me

UNIT 4

Verbs followed by to + infinitive or -ing

The following verbs are followed by to + infinitive: agree, appear, choose, decide, expect, hope, learn, manage, offer, promise, refuse, seem, tend, threaten, want:

We managed to finish the report by the end of the day.

The following verbs are followed by the -ing form: admit, avoid, bother, deny, dislike, enjoy, finish, get round to, imagine, insist on, keep (on), mind, miss, suggest:

I don't know anyone who enjoys doing housework.

Some verbs can be followed by either to + infinitive or the -ing form, with no change in meaning. These verbs include begin, continue and start:

You may begin writing as soon as I say so.

You may begin to write as soon as I say so. (The meaning is the same in both examples.)

Other verbs can be followed by either to + infinitive or the -ing form, but with a change in meaning. These verbs include forget, go on, regret, remember, stop and try:

I forgot to talk to her about it. (I didn't talk to her because I forgot.)

I'll never forget talking to her about it. (I talked to her and now I won't forget.)

He went on to read a book. (He was doing something else and then started reading a book.)

He went on reading a book. (He continued to read the same book as before.)

I regret to tell you that nobody survived the fire. (I am sorry that I am giving you this bad news.)

I regret telling you that nobody survived the fire. (I told you, and now I wish I had not told you.)

Please remember to switch the lights off. (You shouldn't forget to do this.)

I remember switching the lights off. (I switched the lights off and I remember this fact.)

I stopped asking him about his son. (I didn't ask any more questions about his son.)

I stopped to ask him about his son. (I stopped what I was doing because I wanted to ask him about his son.)

Have you tried changing your diet? (Have you experimented with eating different foods?)

Have you tried to change your diet? (Have you made an effort to change what you eat?)

1 Tick the correct sentences. Correct the sentence mistakes.

1 He decided buy the house even though it need renovated.
2 I hope to continue to improve my level of spok English.
3 They promised visiting me in Spain after I mov
4 She refused to help him with his homework.
5 She expected not getting the job because the i hadn't gone well, but the next day she received offer.
6 The lawyers spent all night working on the cas luckily managed finish just in time.

2 Choose the correct options to complete the sen

1 I can't stop to chat / chatting. I'm in a hurry.
2 I didn't get round to do / doing the housework yesterday, so I'll have to do it today instead.
3 The teacher insisted on the students being / be for the school trip.
4 I admit to lie / lying to my parents about the tin party finished last night.
5 I regret not accepting / accept the offer of a job
6 Now that I work from home, I miss talking / talk colleagues in the office.
7 If you forget to go / going to the supermarket, v have anything for dinner.

Too and enough

When too is used before an adjective or adverb, it 'more than we want or need':

I could tell by her smile that she was very happy. ✓

~~I could tell by her smile that she was too happy.~~ (Thi mean 'happier than she wanted to be'.)

I can't walk in these shoes because they're too small

The structure too + adjective or adverb is often followed by to + infinitive:

When we got home, we were too tired to cook dinner.

Enough usually goes before a noun, but after an adjective. It usually means 'as much/many as we need':

That plant isn't getting enough sunlight.

You will succeed if you work hard enough.

Both structures are often followed by to + infinitive:

We don't have enough money to buy a bigger house.

3 Underline and correct the mistakes in these sentences.

1 Is the food enough hot?
2 I arrived too late catch my flight.
3 We have medicine enough for all the patients.
4 They aren't enough fit to play for the rugby team.
5 The room was enough dark to see anything.

Present perfect forms (with for, since, already, yet and just)

The present perfect can be used for an action or event that started in the past and is permanent:

I've known Stephen since our university days.

It is also used for a past action or event which has a result now:

We've finally finished redecorating our house.

However, it is not used when a past event is finished and has no connection with the present:

When I was at school, my favourite subject was geography. ✓

~~When I was at school, my favourite subject has been geography.~~ (My school days are finished and no connection is made with the present.)

For actions and events which began in the past and are still happening now, the present perfect continuous can be used:

How long have you been working on this project?

The present perfect continuous can be used to emphasise an action, while using the present perfect simple puts the emphasis on the result of the action:

I've been sending emails all morning. (emphasis on the action)

I've sent 12 emails this morning. (emphasis on the result)

We do not normally use the present perfect continuous with stative verbs:

Animals have existed here for thousands of years. ✓

~~Animals have been existing here for thousands of years.~~ (Exist is a stative verb.)

For a list of common stative verbs, see Grammar referer Unit 1: present tenses.

We often use for and since with the present perfect sim and present perfect continuous. For is used to show the period of time during which an action or event took place, while since is used to show when an action or eve started. They cannot be interchanged:

We've been sitting here for over two hours. ✓ (period of t action)

~~We've been sitting here since over two hours.~~

We've been sitting here since lunchtime. ✓ (time when th action started)

~~We've been sitting here for lunchtime.~~

Already is used when an event or action occurs sooner than expected:

I can't believe we've already come to the end of our holid

Yet is normally used with question forms and negatives It shows that an action or event is expected, and often occurs at the end of a clause or sentence:

I know you need the report now, but I'm afraid I haven't finished it yet.

We use just to show that an action or event has occurre very recently:

Tania has just called to say she won't be joining us tonight

4 Complete the sentences with either the present perfe simple or continuous form of the verbs in brackets.

1 I ..... (work) on my essay all week, but I ..... (not finish) it yet.
2 What ..... (you do)? Your clothes are covere in mud.
3 You ..... (look) exhausted recently. Have yo ..... (work) too much?
4 I ..... (not cook) dinner yet, because I ..... (read) in the garden for over an hour.
5 Have you got a plaster? I ..... (play) football the garden and I ..... (cut) my knee on som stones.
6 I ..... (be) to France several times this year. Every visit was really outstanding.
7 Recently the government ..... (become) m aware of the need to promote language education i schools.
8 I ..... (stand) on my feet all day, so I'm not really in the mood to go out.

5 Make sentences with either the present perfect simple or continuous.

1 Engineers / develop / technology / to carry out / many important processes.
2 He / not look at / his exam results / yet.
3 I'm exhausted! We / walk for / over four hours.
4 We all feel tired / because / not / get enough sleep / this week.
5 He / know her / since / she was three years old.
6 It rain / heavily / all day / and as a result / some roads / are flooded now.

UNIT 5

Future forms

will

Will (the future simple) is used

1 for predictions about the future:
You 'll feel a lot better when you finish your exams.
Letters sent today will not arrive until next week.
2 for predictions which are uncertain:
I imagine they 'll phone you fairly soon.
Will he help us find somewhere to stay?*
3 for sudden or spontaneous decisions:
Is that the doorbell? I 'll answer it.
Who could help with this? I know! I 'll give Pete a call.

going to

The going to future is used

1 for decisions or intentions about the future:
We 're going to take a longer holiday next year.
I 'm definitely not going to call him again.
2 for predictions about the future based on evidence:
She looks awful. I think she 's going to be sick.
You drive far too fast. You 're going to have an accident one of these days.

1 Complete the sentences with the correct form of will or be going to and a verb from the box.

apply ask be order see visit watch write

1 They ..... a curry for dinner tonight.
2 ..... you ..... the new superhero film at the weekend?
3 A: Our washing machine has broken. Do you know anyone who could fix it?
B: Hmm, I ..... Mark.
4 I ..... for a job at the local library during the semester break.
5 We ..... him in concert any more as they've cancelled the show.
6 Mark and Fiona ..... their brother in B next month.
7 I ..... an email of complaint about the at the hotel.
8 Your suit ..... ready for collection on T morning.

Present continuous

The present continuous can be used for future arrangements:

I 'm playing golf with my brother later.

They 're leaving the country next week.

Present simple

The present simple can be used for future events v are fixed by a timetable or schedule:

The last bus leaves at midnight.

The show begins at eight o'clock this evening.

(For other uses of the present simple and continuo Grammar reference Unit 1.)

Future perfect

The future perfect is used for actions which will be completed before a particular point in the future:

Elena will have finished her course by the end of Jul

Will you have decided what to do by next week's me*

2 Choose the correct options to complete the sent

1 We see / 're going to see the new action film tom bought the tickets online.
2 I don't think I 'll be / am late home. The concert f at eight o'clock.
3 I've got an important meeting tomorrow, so I go going to go to bed early this evening.
4 Our flight departs / is departing at 9.15 tomorrow morning.
5 A: We've run out of milk.
B: OK, I 'll go / 'm going to go and get some mo

Future continuous

The future continuous is used

1 for actions in progress in the future:
This time next week we 'll be sunbathing by the p
In many cases, the continued action may be interrupted:
Don't make too much noise when you come home because I 'll be sleeping.
2 for expected future events:
I 'll be seeing John at work tomorrow so I'll ask hi
3 for polite questions:
Will you be using the car tomorrow?*